Can fistula which has the victim to support himself.

In certain parts of the South trachoma, or "red sore eyes" prevails to a considerable extent, particularly among school children. It was probably introduced by European immigrants many years before the present strict inspection was enforced.

A recent survey by the United States Public Health Service, working in cooperation with the various State health departments, shows that in Eastern Tennessee something like two children in each 100 school children have trachoma. In Kentucky, Georgia and some of the other States in the same region lesser numbers of cases were found.

through ignorance of sanitary precautions.

Overcrowded cabins, common towels, and good neighborliness beside the kitchen fires, for which these mountaincers are famous, offer opportunities for transference of trachoma.

The treatment of this obstinate chronic eye disease must begin early if vision is to be saved. Every child afflicted with trachoma must be excluded from school, and every adult must be excluded from public gatherings of any kind. The supervision of the treatment is a matter for the State or national health authorities, especially in communities y here poverty and ignorance would make each case a centre of contagion if it were left to individual management.

J. J. asks: Can fistula which has been present one year be cured? Is fistula the same as stomach ulcer? I have had chronic diarrhea for years. Yes, by operation, like any other fistula. Fistula is a result of abscess of the ischio-rectal region; the abscess opens on the skin surface, or into the rectal canal, or both, and leaves a new tract. It has no relation with ulcer of the stomach, although one might have both conditions.

You Have Seen the Pictures Of Submarine Life at the Academy of Music They Are Very Wonderful and Beautiful.

These motion pictures are the result of an expedition financed and promoted by the Submarine Film Corporation, of Norfolk, Va., operating under a lease for the use of the patented apparatus

WILLIAMSON SUBMARINE CORPORATION. of Norfolk, Va.

The taking of photographs, the making of motion pictures represents but one of the many special submarine enterprises covered by the patents owned by the Williamson Submarine Corporation. By means of this epoch-making discovery (the invention of Captain Charles Williamson) the average man may now undertake work under the water under ordinary atmospheric conditions; something heretofore impossible.

The patents cover an entirely new method for successful and profitable operation of any kind of work under water. Years have been spent in the work of perfecting the patents and the details of technical and practical development. The experimental stage is now past. The point is now reached where the corporation is ready to interest capital in organizing subsidiary companies to utilize the wonderful opportunities presented by the invention, confident in the knowledge that the apparatus is now, and will be, increasingly indispensable to any submarine enterprise, whether commercial or scientific.

An opportunity to invest in the parent corporation is still open to you. Only a limited number of shares of stock for sale.
